Canada talking Fords

ANDREW FRANCIS WALLACE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Mayor Rob Ford, left, and his brother Coun. Doug Ford. The brothers have been making headlines of late.

Doug Ford's fight with Atwood merited a mention in U.K's the Guardian

It hasn't been the best week for the Ford brothers. Turns out, when you allegedly make a rude gesture to a family or insult a literary icon, the world notices.

In a week that saw the Ford's antics noted at home, the national wires delivered the stories across the country. Calgarians read about it in between mentions of their own city council approving a poet laureate and selecting a location for a $225-million library.

But literary expansion doesn't get the same ink as a literary rumble. Just ask Coun. Doug Ford, who was the subject of a Guardian article.

The Guardian's Hugh Muir enlightens Britons on Doug Ford: "He's a real toughie. He was asked: Would you be willing to close a library to save money? 'Absolutely I would, in a heartbeat,' he replied. And what of attempts by the celebrated author Margaret Atwood to keep threatened libraries open? 'Good luck to Margaret Atwood,' said Doug. 'I don't even know her.... Tell her to go run in the next election."

Ottawa Citizen's David Reevely on Coun. Ford: "Being dumped on by iPhone-wielding intellectuals for not being sufficiently familiar with and respectful toward the woman who wrote The Handmaid's Tale is a really good day for him."

Tommy Schnurmacher, News Talk Radio CJAD 800 AM, Montreal on Doug Ford: "I am left with a gnawing melancholy about poor Mr. Ford. What can one really say of a life lived without ever having been exposed to any of Margaret Atwood's prodigious literary output?" TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"What's important to note ... is that this is exactly the kind of heedless and uninformed decision-making involved in library cuts.... But apparently the art of tactful response just doesn't run in the Ford family."

Ford unfazed by threat

Mayor Rob Ford says he isn't fussed about a man charged with making death threats against him. Police said a Toronto man called 311 on July 14 and made threats against a person. Police did not identify the victim.

Anthony Vella, 56, has been charged with threatening death. Vella was released on $500 bail.

A man who picked up the phone at a number listed to Vella demanded to know how a reporter learned his name. He denied being arrested. "Why don't you go and jump from the CN Tower," he said. "If you want to interrogate me, it's 100 bucks an hour," he said before hanging up. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Senior's 'modest proposals' a hit at budget meeting

Vast majority of speakers at city hall against cutting services

CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ The main committee room during the debate at city hall to discuss budget cuts on Thursday.

After hours of unfriendly deputations, the eyes of those on the executive committee were starting to flutter with fatigue Thursday.

Children had begged for their libraries to stay open. Arts community leaders made economic arguments for investing in culture. A blind woman pleaded not to close bus routes.

Fifteen down, 329 to go. Mayor Rob Ford had announced they would sit all night if needed.

Next up: Mary Trapani Hynes, 67.

"I'm a senior living in North York and I have some modest proposals," she said.

"First, the library. You've made a good start with closing the Metro branch. Don't stop there. You should get rid of the entire public library system—"

Spectators exchanged confused glances.

"—As you can see from the thousands of petitions and emails complaining about proposed service cuts, far too many people use the library to improve literacy and to learn about government and politics. You would save millions."

The room exploded in giggles. Many on the mayor's executive committee couldn't help but chuckle.

Privatize the TCHC, she added. If people can't afford to live here, move! Streetcars and buses have to go, too. Make room for cars. Don't drive? Then leave!

"Those residents that remain in Toronto will be those able to look after their own needs and there will be less need for government services. More money saved. And — win-win — your government can give them a rebate on their property taxes from their savings."

The applause went on for 10 full seconds. Opposition councillors bent over with laughter.

This speech perfectly captured the mood at city hall. People were upbeat, chatting with strangers about what they love about Toronto. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Suggestions

CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Rob Ford

Some of consultant KPMG's suggestions for cost-cutting in the 2012 Toronto operating budget:

- Close an unspecified number of library branches: Up to $13.4 million.
- Consider integrating fire and ambulance services: $81 million.
- Scrap grants that support 685 student nutrition programs for low-income children; 42 AIDS-prevention programs; 38 community drug-prevention projects: $6.2 million.

Possible police savings

The Toronto Police Service has the distinction of having the biggest budget of all city departments and agencies, with a total tab just short of $1 billion.

Consultant KPMG has come up with a range of suggestions to save some of that money. Among them:

— Transfer parking enforcement to the city.

— Scrap the school crossing guard program in favour of student crossing guards.

— Reduce or temporarily stop hiring new officers and offer incentives for senior officers to retire early.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Possible TTC savings

The TTC covers 70 per cent of its operating costs through the fare box.

Toronto property taxpayers have to pay the 30 per cent fares don't cover, and that tab comes to $429 million this year.

Consultant KPMG has offered suggestions to help limit the hit on taxpayers:

— Bring in private-sector contractors to operate some routes and perform maintenance tasks such as cleaning, trash collection, landscaping and security.

— Sell the TTC's commuter parking lots, though that would mean giving up an annual $1.6 million in parking revenue.

— Scrap or double the fares of the Blue Night overnight bus.

Liberals defend loose laws for celebrity bodyguards

- Toronto Film Festival hired muscle will be exempt from Ontario licence laws
- Critics accuse government of giving special treatment to Hollywood stars

Opposition

- The Liberals will bend over backwards for high-profile celebrities, while small businesses across the province are forced to toe the line, said Progressive Conservative critic Steve Clark.
- The government toughened the regulation of private security guards last year amid complaints the rules were too lax and granted licences without proper training. Now it can take months to obtain the proper licence, he said.

Ontario's governing Liberals are defending their efforts to roll out the red carpet for visiting celebrities — and their hired muscle — by bending the rules that require bodyguards to hold a provincial licence.

Ontario requires that all security guards be licenced by the province, but the government has quietly proposed an exemption for Hollywood stars that would take effect just a few days before Toronto International Film Festival begins.

Bollywood stars who were in the city last month for their version of the Oscars — where Premier Dalton McGuinty posed for the cameras — weren't extended the same courtesy.

Ontario Provincial Police laid 142 charges for violations to the province's security regulations during the International Indian Film Academy awards celebrations. One film star saw two bodyguards charged for working without a licence.

Community Safety and Correctional Services Minister Jim Bradley said he's only trying to protect the province's billion-dollar film industry.

Film Ontario and their union ACTRA requested the exemption out of concern that the regulations would chase major film productions — which employ many local workers — out of the province, he said.

The A-listers have a "significant influence" on where their movies are shot and if they don't feel comfortable without their personal bodyguards, they'll go elsewhere, Bradley said.

"We want to ensure that this business continues in Ontario," Bradley said in an interview. "It brings in a lot of revenue, it creates a lot of jobs and it means that people who supply them, of course, are making money from this as well." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Former Liberal wins Tory nomination

Disgruntled former Liberal Tony Genco has won the Progressive Conservative nomination in Vaughan, setting up a titanic battle against his one-time mentor, Liberal MPP Greg Sorbara.

Genco, an ex-Liberal candidate who lost to Conservative Julian Fantino by 964 votes in a federal by-election in Vaughan last November, won a contested provincial Tory nomination Wednesday night over accountant Frank Cacciola.

A former Liberal staffer at Queen's Park, Genco broke with the party after the federal wing did not want him to run again in the May 2 election.

In a statement after becoming the Tory nominee, Genco took aim at Premier Dalton McGuinty's Liberals, who face a challenging re-election Oct. 6.

"Our families are working harder and bringing home less because of the McGuinty Liberals' tax hikes, waste, secret deals and expensive energy experiments," he said, praising Tory Leader Tim Hudak for offering "families, seniors and small business owners the respect and relief they deserve."

Sorbara, co-chair of the Liberal campaign and key architect of McGuinty's 2003 and 2007 majority victories, will be nominated Aug. 18. Sources say he is relishing the chance to scrap with his estranged protégé.

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Tony Genco broke with the Liberal party after it did not want him to run again in the May 2 election.

In a tweet Thursday, Hudak said Genco would bring "real change" by defeating "Greg Sorbara, the McGuinty finance minister who gave you Ontario's biggest ever income tax hike."

That's an apparent reference to the health premium introduced in the 2004 budget.

While the Tories under former leader John Tory promised to kill the tax of up to $900 per person in the 2007 election, Hudak has opted to keep it if elected.

The Liberal campaign wasted no time in releasing a selection of Genco quotes attacking Conservatives and praising the Grits over the past dozen years or so.

They include him describing the Tories as a "wrecking crew" in 1999 and hailing Sorbara as "a very good and experienced guy" last November. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

G20 police breached rights of man with crossbow, judge says

Defence lawyer argued rights violation 'systematic'

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Police arrest Gary McCullough close to where G20 leaders met on June 24, 2010.

Police breached the rights of a man arrested with a crossbow near the G20 security fence when they questioned him without a lawyer present, a judge has ruled.

"The law makes clear that an investigative detention of that kind gives rise to a right to counsel," provincial court Justice David Fairgrieve said Wednesday as he excluded all the statements made by Gary McCullough to a police officer who questioned him at the scene.

McCullough, 54, was arrested in downtown Toronto on June 24, 2010, just two days before world leaders met here, after police found a loaded crossbow in his car's roof carrier.

His defence lawyer had applied to have the statements excluded, insisting his rights were violated. The judge agreed. In addition to excluding McCullough's statements at the scene, he also excluded any testimony he had already made in court that related to those statements.

The judge also agreed with defence criticisms of Toronto police for continually denying McCullough's right to counsel while he was held at the Eastern Avenue detention centre for those who were arrested during the G20.

"It was clear that nobody was taking responsibility" for getting McCullough to a lawyer, the judge said. "Nobody did anything."

Killer 'total evil,' says police chief

Norway says he's a lone-wolf terrorist But will his massacre spawn imitators? Europe on high alert

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man who admits to the Norway massacre is "total evil," the country's top police official said Thursday.

Anders Behring Breivik is a sociopath who acted without accomplices, said Janne Kristiansen, director of the Norwegian Police Security Service.

"It's a unique case. It's a unique person," she said.

"On the information we have so far, and I emphasize so far, we have no indication he was part of a network or had any accomplices, or that there are other cells."

Breivik kept his plans to himself for more than a decade, she added.

▶ Anders Behring Breivik

Meanwhile, police were on high alert across Europe.

Security officials expressed concern that Breivik could inspire imitators among Europe's extremist, anti-immigrant fringe. Particularly worrying are similar loners who give no clues of their intentions, the officials said.

European anti-terrorism officials held a special meeting with Norwegian representatives Thursday dedicated to preventing future extreme-right attacks.

Security officials in Norway, Germany and Britain said they had found nothing to support Breivik's claims of belonging to a network bent on starting a revolution aimed at ridding Europe of Muslims.

Breivik admits he set off a car bomb in Oslo, killing at least eight people. He then launched a shooting spree at a youth camp. Sixty-eight people died.

Teacher charged with cancer fraud

Colleagues say McGuire told them she had neuroblastoma She has not entered a plea

A group of elementary school teachers who rallied behind a co-worker allegedly battling cancer are still searching for answers after the woman was charged with fraud.

Breanne McGuire, 31, of Kitchener was arrested by Waterloo Regional Police in October after allegedly accepting more than $14,000 raised for her experimental cancer treatments.

Staff Sgt. Paul Lobsinger of the fraud branch said McGuire was charged after she "allegedly led some friends to believe she had cancer."

Police said the charge relates to a 2008 fundraiser organized for McGuire at The Velvet Lounge in Cambridge. The funds were raised through a silent auction and ticket sales organized by her co-workers. The case is still working its way through the courts. The accused declined comment through her lawyer, Bruce Ritter.

Cycling head injuries down by 27%: Stats

78 Of those who still ended up in hospital trauma units because of head injuries, 78 per cent were not wearing helmets.

The number of cycling-related head injuries has dropped significantly over the last decade, according to new national statistics, and officials are crediting a growing use of helmets.

While the number of cycling-injury hospitalizations across Canada remained stable between 2001-2002 and 2009-2010, the number attributed to head injuries fell by 27 per cent, according to new data released Thursday by the Canadian Institute for Health Information.

"It intuitively makes sense. If you have something to protect your head you are less likely to have an injury," said Greg Webster, director of primary health care information at CIHI.

There were 4,325 cycling-related injuries in 2009-2010, compared to 4,332 eight years earlier.

Only about one in four of the overall cycling-related hospitalizations involved a collision with a motor vehicle.

"For three out of four, something else is going on," Webster said.

News in brief

Planet Earth has asteroid companion

SPACE DISCOVERY. Like a poodle on a leash, a tiny asteroid runs ahead of Earth on the planet's year-long strolls around the sun, scientists report.

The discovery of this companion, which measures only about 300 metres across, makes Earth the fourth planet in the solar system that's known to share its orbit with an asteroid.

Imagine Earth and the asteroid travelling around a clock face, with the sun in the middle. Generally, the asteroid runs about two numbers ahead.

Sex-trade worker deemed public health risk

- Woman needs three more months of constant medication: Officials
- Has vanished from hospital twice

JAMES TURNER
WINNIPEG@METRONEWS.CA

A Winnipeg woman who has worked in the sex trade has been ordered held in jail due to the threat the community faces if she doesn't complete treatment for infectious tuberculosis.

Health officials won a rare order from the courts under the Public Health Act to keep the 30-year-old locked up in a provincial corrections facility for 90 days.

"I am concerned that without proper treatment, (she) may eventually develop drug-resistant tuberculosis that is difficult or impossible to treat," said Dr. William Libich, a Medical Officer of Health with the Winnipeg Regional Health Authority (WRHA).

The woman was diagnosed with "untreated active" TB in late December, but since then has breached terms of treatment agreements five times, according to court documents. The breaches triggered sweeping searches to find her and get her treatment back on track.

It takes between six and nine months of continuous treatment to cure TB, Libich's affidavit said.

Mapuche protest cut short

The women who were arrested were protesting the police presence in their community. Their ethnic group once numbered 16 million people before Spain colonized Chile. Now there are about 900,000 remaining in southern Chile. Most live in poverty.

We Don't Sell Car Insurance.
We help you find lower insurance rates to save you money.
Savings are just a click away!
The key to finding the lowest price on your insurance is comparing as many insurance companies as possible. But how can you do this without wasting a lot of time and effort. Is there a better way?
YES! There's an easier AND much faster way. By spending just a few minutes on InsuranceHotline.com, you'll find rates from within our large network of licensed professionals that are tailored to your personal driving profile.
So How Does InsuranceHotline.com Work Exactly?
Users complete a simple online form, answering the same basic questions asked by most insurance brokers and agents. The process typically takes 5-10 minutes. InsuranceHotline.com then runs this information against its database of over 30 insurance companies to find the lowest rate available through its large network of licensed insurance professionals. If you are interested in obtaining the rate presented, InsuranceHotline.com allows you to connect with a member of our network who can provide the rate quoted. Cell users like new kids on block

'Competitive presence' helped cut average monthly cellphone bill from $58.81 to $57.86, CRTC says

New providers in Canada's wireless-phone market captured 25 per cent of those who subscribed to cellphone service in 2010, according to the telecommunications regulator.

The CRTC detailed its findings Thursday on this and other elements of the communications sector in its annual Communications Monitoring Report.

The companies who only started offering wireless phone service in the past few years — Globalive, Mobilicity, Public Mobile and Videotron — made less of a dent in the overall market, though. They captured just two per cent of the overall subscriber share, the report showed, meaning Bell, Rogers and Telus continue to dominate.

"I think the incumbents have actually done a good job of holding off the new entrants but I think the new entrants are just getting started," said Iain Grant, managing director for market research and technology firm SeaBoard Group. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cell vs. home

- The number of people who subscribed to cellphone services increased by 8.5 per cent to 25.8 while the number of people who had home phone services went down by almost one per cent to 12.6 million.

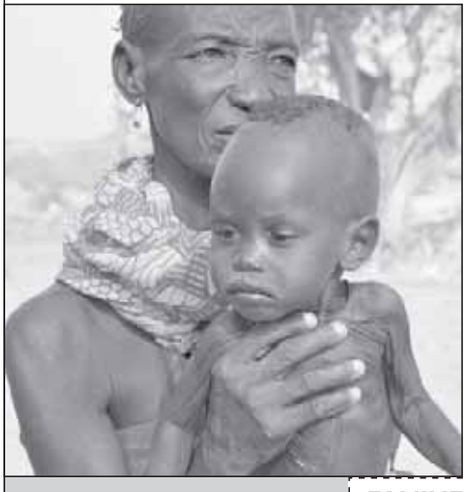
URGENT:
Famine in the Horn of Africa

World Vision



Millions face starvation. Canadian government will match your donation to help children and families.

Deadly hunger is sweeping through Somalia, where the United Nations has declared a famine. Children are dying as it spreads into Kenya and Ethiopia.

Thousands of desperate people are coming to World Vision. Many, critically malnourished themselves, beg for food for their emaciated children. For many, death is only days or hours away.

We are providing life-saving emergency food and water, preventing the spread of disease, and will help families rebuild their lives. But the need is desperate, and more support is needed immediately.

Please act now. Your gift doubles in value.

The Canadian government will make an equivalent contribution from its East Africa Drought Fund. Your gift of $50 will provide $100 of life-saving food for desperate children and families. $100 provides $200 of food. Please respond now.

Mail the form below or give immediately at WorldVision.ca/help

World Vision is a Christian relief, development, and advocacy organization dedicated to working with children, families, and communities to overcome poverty and injustice. As followers of Jesus, we are motivated by God's love to serve all people regardless of race, religion, gender, or ethnicity.

FAMINE EMERGENCY: Here's my gift to help starving children and families in the Horn of Africa.

A PARTICLE OF HOPE AMID TRAGEDY

THE METRO LIST

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

It's hard to believe all this happened in just one week. Whatever happened to the "silly season"?

1 Tragedy in Norway. A lunatic murders dozens of innocent young people to make some kind of stupid point. What could be more horrifying and pointless? Lesson No. 1: Disarm all the Nazis. Carefully.

2 The 27 Club. A different kind of tragedy as Amy Winehouse joins a self-destructive fraternity of young people who make beautiful music but can't face the music. Good news/bad news: She left behind a partially completed album, so she'll haunt the Billboard 100 for some time to come.

3 Jack Layton. Let's hope Canada's favourite champagne socialist gets an opportunity to raise a glass in celebration at least one more time.

4 The God particle. God may or may not exist, but there is new evidence that the God Particle does. Deep in the bowels of the CERN atom smasher in Switzerland, the enigmatic Higgs Boson, which theoretically imparts mass to all other elemental particles, leaves tantalizing tracks in the virtual sand. Go ahead Neo, take the red pill.

5 Peace-making Pakistani. Remember this name: Hini Rabbani Khar, the best-looking foreign minister on the planet, and the youngest. At 34, Pakistan's foreign minister has just finished a visit to arch-enemy India, where she charmed the dickens out of her Indian counterpart, S.M. Kirshna, 79. The two nations promise "a new era" of co-operation. She's not just another pretty face.

6 Speaking of pretty faces. Hugh Hefner's 25-year-old ex-fiancée Crystal Harris tells Howard Stern she only had sex once with the octogenarian Big Bunny and it only lasted "like two seconds." I bet it was the best two seconds of Hef's long, long life.

7 The famine in Somalia. Let me get this straight. There are two million people in Somalia on the brink of starvation, and the faction in charge of the blighted area, al-Shabab, believes it will be better for the people to starve to death than accept aid from western infidel dogs. Just for a second there, thanks to Hini Rabbani Khar, the world was starting to make sense. Now, thanks to al-Shabab, it's back to normal.

8 The cod's back, 'by. Break out the Screech because there's cause for joy on the Grand Banks, as for the first time since the fishery shut down in 2003, the cod are starting to come back — one-third of their levels from the '70s and '80s, and growing. Not yet time to rebuild the boat, 'by, but close.

Worth mentioning

GLOBAL WARMING. A wildlife biologist whose observation that polar bears likely drowned in the Arctic helped galvanize the global warming movement seven years ago was placed on administrative leave as officials investigate scientific misconduct allegations.

Although it wasn't clear what the exact allegations are, a government watchdog group representing Anchorage-based scientist Charles Monnett said investigators have focused on his 2006 journal article about the bears that garnered worldwide attention.

Whatever the outcome or the nature of the allegations, the investigation will likely fuel the ongoing fight between climate change activists and those who are skeptical of scientists' findings about global warming. The probe also focuses attention on an Obama administration policy intended to protect scientists from political interference.

In May 2008, the polar bear was classified as a threatened species, the first with its survival at risk due to global warming.

WEIRD NEWS

Fugitive who said 'catch me if you can' caught

A fugitive who taunted police on his Facebook page to 'catch me if you can. I'm in Brooklyn' has been arrested.

The Daily News says U.S. marshals and NYPD detectives tracked Victor Burgos down to an apartment in Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant neighbourhood Monday night, sitting at a computer with his Facebook page open.

The 29-year-old suspect was wanted by police in Utica, N.Y., on multiple arrest warrants for domestic violence and harassment of his former girlfriend.

FACEBOOK

He allegedly issued the Facebook challenge after his mug shot appeared on the Utica Police Department's 10 most wanted list.

Utica Sgt. Steve Hauck tells the News: "He told us via Facebook to come and get him and we did."

Plot synopsis

- When nearly divorced Cal Weaver (Steve Carell) begins hanging around a trendy LA bar he meets Jacob (Ryan Gosling), a handsome slick talker who offers to tutor him in the art of being single. Interwoven are two other love stories — the trials of Cal's son (Jonah Bobo) who thinks his babysitter (Analeigh Tipton) is his soul mate and Hannah's (Emma Stone) search for the right guy.

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

Gosling gets funny

Canadian actor, best known for turns in darker roles, shines in Crazy, Stupid Love ◐ Breezy rom com has substance beneath the sweetness

Richard: As good as Steve Carell is here I have a feeling the person everyone will be talking about on the way out of the theatre is Ryan Gosling. He reveals a gift for comedy, a magnificent abdominal area and the ability to take a stereotype and turn it into a living, breathing character. Agree or no?

MB: Yes, this is a great leap forward for an actor who has played a variety of depressives, mumblers, and addicts. He looks great in a sharp cut jacket and crackles with charisma. Of course, he's got the fun role, but still, he adds something extra to the stock character of the lothario with a wounded heart. And by the way the female members of the audience swooned when he took off his shirt. Gosling has matured into one fine Canada Goose.

RC: It's true. Young Hercules seems like a long time ago now. If Gosling can erase his slightly embarrassing TV past away, then I think this is the movie that will go a long way to erase the image of Steve Carell as that guy from The Office. He was masterful on that show and has been good in other movies — particularly as the depressed Uncle Frank in Little Miss Sunshine — but here he absolutely nails the mix of comedy and pathos needed to make Crazy, Stupid, Love so memorable.

MB: Right, but I couldn't help notice your lack of praise for his recent film work, which I find tepid and dweeby. Here Carell can get his chops into a script that goes beyond his usual hangdog schlemiels and grow a pair. And it's a joy to watch. But Richard, let's not leave out the perfectly cast supporting roles. I loved both the babysitter and Carell's 13-year-old son. Any other standouts for you? Or can we give the directing team their kudos? I've rarely seen better direction in a rom com.

RC: I agree all round. It's a cut above the usual rom com, reminding me more of the Neil Simon relationship movies of the '70s that were family dramas disguised as sex comedies. As for the supporting cast, I have to say I called it for Emma Stone when I first saw her in Superbad.

MB: By the way, I wasn't sure about the movie at first. The plot seemed to be too close to something Dane Cook might have done in his brief heyday, but then it ripened into a full-fledged, perfect farce with all the plot strands coming together. The ending's a bit sentimental, and I've always hated when characters express their feelings in a Big Speech, but these are tiny quibbles.

Cowboys and Aliens
Genre: Action, Sci-Fi
Director: Jon Favreau
Stars: Daniel Craig, Harrison Ford and Olivia Wilde
◍◍
What's really stupefying about Jon Favreau's genre mash-up Cowboys and Aliens is that none of its five credited screenwriters notices how clunky, artless and just plain awful most of the dialogue sounds.

The cowboys spend so much of the film sitting around talking and whining that you find yourself rooting for the aliens — and wishing they'd show up sooner.

The real shame, though, is the wasted pedigree at every level, from a skilled genre director (Favreau) to blockbuster godfathers as producers (Steven Spielberg and Ron Howard) to a dream cast (Harrison Ford, Daniel Craig, Olivia Wilde and Sam Rockwell).

That so many great elements can add up to so little makes you wonder where it all went so terribly, terribly wrong.

Beats, Rhymes and Life: The Travels of a Tribe Called Quest
Genre: Documentary
Director: Michael Rapaport
Stars: Q-Tip, Phife Dawg and Ali Shaheed Muhammad
◍◍½

Michael Rapaport's documentary about the influential (and now semi-defunct) New York City rap crew A Tribe Called Quest is a useful primer for non-hip-hop heads about the group's influence: interviews describing their formation and early success are candid and revealing. But as it moves into the present tense, it feels more like a VH1 Reuniting the Band special than an investigative document.

Another Earth
Genre: Drama
Director: Mike Cahill
Stars: Brit Marling, William Mapother, Matthew-Lee Erlbach
◍◍◍½

Science-fiction in setting and indie drama in content, Another Earth opens with the appearance of a second earth populated with duplicates of everyone on our own planet, but quickly ignores that grand conceit in favour of a small, ambiguous story about a damaged girl who secretly befriends the man whose wife and child she accidentally killed years earlier. It's a challenging and thought-provoking movie sure to irritate anyone seeking concrete answers to the filmmakers' questions.

Director: Joe Cornish
Stars: John Boyega
◍◍◍
Already a cult favourite in the U.K., director Joe Cornish's frenetic horror/satire Attack the Block has been getting quite the push from stateside distributor Sony. While the set up is like an R-rated, sci-fi-tinted Little Rascals, make no mistake; Attack the Block ain't for little kids. It's intense, violent, and filled with all manner of profanity and gore galore.

The Smurfs
Genre: Animation, comedy
Director: Raja Gosnell
Stars: Neal Patrick Harris

It becomes clear about midway through the climactic battle scene in The Smurfs that the adorable blue characters are pretty much just using their namesake favourite word in place of cursing.

And thinking too much about the implications of the plot will only lead to migraines. Neal Patrick Harris and Glee scene-stealer Jayma Mays do their best, but the stunt-casting of the blue heroes (with George Lopez and Katy Perry in major roles) grates.

Despite being beloved kids' entertainment, the film is targeted at the 25 to 40 crowd. Whose smurfing idea was that?

Life in a Day
Genre: Documentary
Director: Kevin Macdonald
Stars: Cindy Baer, Moica and Caryn Waechter

Created entirely from footage uploaded by YouTube users, Life in a Day may not have the appeal of a strong narrative but director Kevin Macdonald (The Eagle) manages to create a stirring cinematic experience nonetheless.

With clips culled worldwide on the same day, moviegoers witness everything from the banal to the breathtaking in what amounts to a masterfully skilled collage of humanity — you can't help but get sucked in.

Put an emphasis on the R-rating

- Body-switching movies have been done before
- But Change-Up stars Ryan Reynolds and Jason Bateman say where their film differs is the rating

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

MWN IN HOLLYWOOD

Playing best friends who magically switch bodies in The Change-Up, real-life friends Ryan Reynolds and Jason Bateman have had plenty of time to think about what they'd do if they found themselves in that situation in real life.

"I'd do terrible things to his body," Reynolds admits.

Bateman, not batting an eye, finishes the thought for him: "And to my wife. He's been after my wife for years," to which Reynolds nods solemnly, adding, "Years, years. And she will be mine."

Kidding — we hope.

In the film, Bateman's straight-laced family man finds himself navigating the world of a layabout bachelor, while Reynolds' barely employed actor takes on a wife and kids and a rough week at work as a lawyer. But while they may seem perfect for their roles — Bateman as the straight-laced family man and Reynolds as the pot-smoking ladies man — the guys insist they didn't really mind who played which role. In fact, Reynolds doesn't think he's any more like one character than the other.

"I've got to say I'm somewhere in the middle," he says. "There was a time in my life when I'd wake up mornings in a shallow pool of my own fluid, but those days are over. I eat breakfast now, not ketchup. It's different now."

Bateman, though, definitely related to the husband and father he plays on screen, even if he was concerned it might not fit with the kind of raunchy comedy they were going for.

"You look at the domestic part of this film and you think is that going to soften the R-rating?" he admits.

"Because when you buy a ticket to an R-rated film, you want R-rated comedy."

The Change-Up is most definitely an R-rated comedy, and the two actors are more than proud of it.

"You want to go in there, have a good time, laugh your ass off, maybe get offended a couple of times and get the hell out. We're not trying to win Oscars here or teach anybody any lessons," Bateman says.

"There's no reason to do another body-switching movie unless you're going to do something different. And we do here. This is an R-rated body-switching movie, that hasn't been done before."

Bringing the house down

Adele, Chris Brown and Lil Wayne announced as the first performers at this year's MTV Video Music Awards

Chris Brown and Lil Wayne are returning to the MTV Video Music Awards stage, while Adele will make her first appearance.

The trio are the first performers announced for the Aug. 28 ceremony in Los Angeles, at the Nokia Theatre. The announcement was made Thursday.

Brown's star, once tarnished because of his attack on Rihanna, is shining bright this year, and MTV has taken note.

"He is having a moment with multiple hits this year, and he always delivers on the VMA stage," said Amy Doyle, executive vice-president of music and talent at MTV, on Wednesday.

She called his 2007 performance at the VMAs one of the most memorable.

"He will give an energetic, bombastic, jaw-dropping performance."

Adele, who is nominated for seven VMAs, is also scheduled to perform. Only Katy Perry has more VMA nods with nine; Adele is tied with Kanye West with her seven.

Doyle predicted Adele would "bring chills down everybody's spine, if not bring them to tears, too."

Adele has the year's bestselling album with 21, but Doyle notes that her live act hasn't been seen much: Adele was forced to reschedule some concerts earlier this year because of a throat problem.

Lil Wayne's appearance will come a day before the scheduled release of his much-anticipated new album, Tha Carter IV. Like Brown, he has also performed before on the VMAs.

"Being a nominee and performer on the VMAs once again is an honour because everyone doesn't get that opportunity," he said in statement. "Looking forward to performing on the show, and having Tha Carter IV drop the same week!"

Doyle said this year's show has a dynamic set that will "allow for a lot of bells and whistles," and promises that each performance will be unique.

So far, no host has been announced for the typically irreverent show.

Doyle said a tribute to Amy Winehouse, who died Saturday, is a possibility.

"We don't know yet, but certainly she is top of mind, in our thoughts and in our hearts," she said.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THAT HIT SUMMER SONG?

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

It used to be every summer had its song.

No matter where you went, you heard That Song. It spilled from cars, slipped out from underneath ear buds, blared in clubs and floated through stores. And you could never, ever turn on a radio without hearing it.

Last year's song of the summer was California Gurls by Katy Perry. Remember 2009 when Use Somebody from Kings of Leon was played everywhere? I fully intended to write about candidates for the summer song of 2011, but then I ran into a wall. What, pray tell, determines a "hit song" these days?

In the old days, a hit song was the one you heard on the radio the most. Its radio hit-ness factor was determined by (a) how many copies the single sold; and (b) how many radio stations were playing it. At some point over the summer, one song would be played so much that it became indelibly associated with your memories of that year.

If we're to use that standard for the summer of 2011, the current leader is Adele's Rolling in the Deep. No song is being played more often on more radio stations in North America right now.

Today, though, hit songs are determined by more than those two parameters. This is because an increasing number of people now get their music from places other than the radio.

A service called The Ultimate Chart (which monitors everything from plays on YouTube to tweets on Twitter) ranks LMFAO's Party Rock Anthem as the most popular song of the summer of 2011. At number two, it's Skyscraper by Demi Lovato, a song that has had barely any radio airplay at all so far. She's a total online phenom right now. Adele is way down at number eight.

And let's not forget Rebecca Black's Friday. As awful as the song is, the video has been viewed 170 million times on YouTube and parodied millions of times more, all without ever troubling even the lowest regions of the Top 40 radio charts. That's a hit, right?

So what will be the summer hit of 2011? I guess it all depend on where you get your music.

Sia's sagely approach

Aussie singer-songwriter talks about her destiny She explains how a death inspired her song Breathe Me

LINDA LABAN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

It seems that we are born and then spend the rest of our lives finding out who we are. At least Sia, the über-bubbly Australian pop singer-songwriter, would agree with that statement.

"I know, isn't it crazy," the 35-year-old rhetorically gushes.

Sia's latest album, We Are Born, discusses this mortal coil in passionate funk, soul and ballads. Not that she presumes to offer easy explanations, but her lyrics seem to possess a certain sagely grasp of life beyond the commercial schlep.

"We're all created by our environment when we're growing up," she says. "I don't think I was born this way, I think I was created. I've been tap dancing all my life." She pauses for a long moment.

Does she mean literally or metaphorically?

"Literally, jazz tap dancing. Metaphorically, too, I guess. I'm a terrible real tap dancer, but I'm a fantastic metaphorical tap dancer."

Sia was tapping along quite nicely at the beginning of this millennium, living in London with the usual ups and downs. Then her boyfriend's death shook her so hard that she wrote the beautiful, heart-stopping Breathe Me, which, when paired with the finale of HBO's series Six Feet Under, blew up her career.

"I'd be in a very different place had they not put that song in there. I'd probably be a reiki master or a dog masseuse," she sighs. "A beast was born."

METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Sick of The Simpsons? Impossible, we say! The series is set to hit 500 episodes on Feb. 19, 2012, after all.

But according to series executive producer Al Jean, not everyone is feeling the love. "There's a big town meeting that the Simpsons don't know about, and when they go in, the town is saying, 'We're going to get rid of the Simpsons,'" Jean said Tuesday, explaining the milestone episode's plot to TV critics touring the show's animation studio, Film Roman, in Burbank, Calif.

"They're sick of them."

FOX BROADCASTING CO/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ The Simpsons: from left, Lisa , Marge , Maggie, Homer and Bart Simpson.

Highlights

Jean spilled other highlights of Season 23, premiering Sept. 25.

• The Treehouse of Horrors episode will actually air around Halloween this year: Oct. 30.

•Another holiday-themed half-hour — a Christmas episode — takes place 30 years in the future.

"Bart is this lousy, deadbeat dad who actually lives in the school, which is now condos, and Skinner is his landlord," Jean says.

In another episode, Homer becomes a Glenn Beck-like pundit. He leads the Gravy Boat movement and selects Ted Nugent as his ideal presidential candidate.

• Pop-culture spoofs and homages abound. In a parody of Inception, Jean says: "One dream level was (drawn in) the Tracey Ullman Show style" — like the animated series' early days.

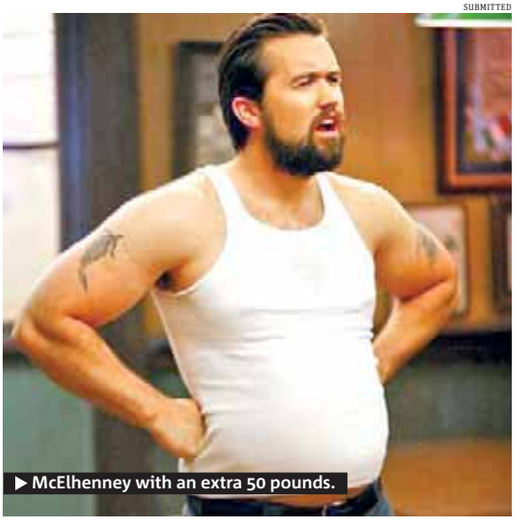
Where Better Medicines Begin

Packing a heavy load

Rob McElhenney gives his Sunny character some extra weight

SUBMITTED



▶ McElhenney with an extra 50 pounds.

It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia star Rob McElhenney got fat on purpose and to make a few weighty points.

He wanted to flesh out the idiocy and vanity of his sitcom's character, Mac. He wanted to satirize the glam appearance of TV actors, no matter how mundane the part they're playing. And, as a bonus, he threw in mockery of society's obsession with looks.

McElhenney, 34, is creator of the sitcom that returns to FX on Sept. 15.

He said what he didn't intend with his 50-pound weight gain for the upcoming season is to make fun of obesity. McElhenney said. Online observers and some fans have expressed concern that Sunny is taking cheap shots at the overweight, which McElhenney called upsetting.

"It's never been the intention of the show to be mean-spirited. The characters are mean-spirited. The show is satire," he said.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

How to do it

McElhenney, 34, more than doubled his daily food intake to about 5,000 calories, trying to keep it relatively healthy by eating lean protein, brown rice and vegetables.

▶ It took him five months to gain the weight. Since filming ended, he has lost nearly half of the 50 pounds so far.

Sobering up killed Amy: Dad

Amy Winehouse's family are now suggesting that the troubled singer's death was actually caused by trying to get sober after years of heavy drinking, according to the Sun.

Her father, Mitch Winehouse, reportedly says it was the shock to her system of going cold turkey that did her in.

"He said doctors had told Amy to gradually reduce her intake of alcohol and to avoid bingeing at all costs. Amy told him she couldn't do that. It was all or nothing and she gave up completely," a source says. METRO

"Sgt. Williams, unfortunately due to prior commitments, I will not be able to attend the Ball with you this year but I am sending you a case of Moet and Chandon with gratitude."

Mila Kunis and Justin Timberlake have already accepted invitations while Betty White has politely declined and Miley Cyrus has not yet responded to her invitation. The Marine Corps. Ball will be held Nov. 10. METRO

A toast to Bloody Mary

PETER ROCKWELL

Paris is a drinkers' Disneyland with a cool bar, café or brasserie on almost every corner.

I spent time there recently and went to rue Daunou, to pay respects to Harry's New York Bar: A liquid landmark since 1911. I made the pilgrimage to taste its Bloody Mary.

If the history of that classic cocktail has one consistency it's that it was invented at Harry's in the 1930s. Some say it was named after a girl the original bartender knew. Others say England's Queen Mary I was actually the inspiration.

You can find dozens of Bloody Mary recipes online that suggest any number of different vodkas to use as a base.

While Harry's chooses a Polish version; I like keeping things Canadian and mix mine with Iceberg Vodka (750 ml, $23.59 - $26.98) — a super smooth, full-flavoured spirit made with melted iceberg chunks harvested off the coast of Newfoundland. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. These Root Beer Praline Sundaes are sure to impress your guests.

These over-the-top sophisticated sundaes may look fancy but are easy to make. Start by making walnut praline, which is broken into pieces and scattered over scoops of ice cream glazed with root beer syrup. The sundae is crowned with whipped cream and candied orange peel.

Preparation:

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. Then scatter walnuts in single layer on sheet pan and toast in oven for 10 minutes, until aromatic and browned.

2. Heat sugar in nonstick skillet over medium-high heat, stirring occasionally with wooden spoon, until sugar begins to melt and lump. Add 2 tablespoons of root beer syrup. Mix will start to foam. Stir constantly; sugar will become thinner and lumps will melt. When almost all lumps are gone, remove from heat and stir in butter and baking soda. Liquid will become foamy. Stir until foam is no longer streaky, about 10 seconds. Mix in toasted walnuts and pour mix back onto sheet pan, scraping as much of the melted sugar possible with stirring spoon. Allow to set until firm. Torque pan, caramelized nuts will pop off. Chop into small pieces.

3. To make sundaes, put scoop of ice cream in 4 dessert dishes. Drizzle remaining root beer syrup over top, and top with a generous sprinkle of caramelized walnuts. Top each with a dollop of whipped cream and a spoonful of candied orange peel. Serve.

All things folk at festival

The Newport Folk Festival has been around for more than 50 years and it's showing no signs of quieting down

The folk music band The David Wax Museum entered a contest last year - along with 150 other bands - for a chance to play the Newport Folk Festival. As unbelievable as it was to members of the Boston-based band, they won.

And then they rocked. The performance kick-started a wild year that saw the band tour the country and win praise from NPR and Time magazine. This weekend, the band heads back to the Newport Folk Festival - this time for the main stage.

"Because of Newport, we were able to find a receptive audience," David Wax said. Wax, along with fiddle- and jawbone-playing Suz Slezak, is the core of the band, which fuses Mexican and American folk traditions. "Nobody had heard of us. There were no expectations. But at Newport there were people willing to give us a chance."

Folk music's popularity may have ebbed and flowed since Bob Dylan famously traded in his acoustic for an electric guitar here in 1965, but the festival itself is as relevant as ever. Sold out in advance for the first time in its more than 50-year history, the festival continues to lure veteran stars like Emmylou Harris while serving as a proving ground for new bands looking for their big break.

TONY AVELAR / THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Elvis Costello will perform at this year's festival, which kicks off Saturday.

The festival gets under way Saturday at Fort Adams State Park. Some 10,000 attendees are expected for two days of performances from Harris, the Decemberists, Gillian Welch, Elvis Costello and many more. Thanks to the flexible and ever-expanding definition of what constitutes folk music, they all fit snugly under the folk umbrella.

To George Wein, the man who created the folk festival in 1959 and continues to produce it, there's more connecting Pete Seeger, Joan Baez and Dylan to today's artists than the name of a music festival.

"All these young people have passed through rock, and they're going back to hear music and traditions from before rock," said Wein, 85. "A lot of these bands might have been called folk back then, and now they have these huge followings."

Singer-songwriter Matthew Ward, who performs as M. Ward, has played the folk festival before and will return this year. He said he's often asked to define folk music, but he doesn't have a good answer.

"It's really a very rough, loose term. It's a mash-up of lots of things. But it's alive and well."
SINGER-SONGWRITER M.WARD

"It's really a very rough, loose term," he said. "It's a mash-up of lots of things. But it's alive and well."

Ward said he doesn't enjoy playing at most festivals. Newport, he said, is a different scene. He's spending an extra day at the festival to check out other performances.

"Most festivals ... they're crowded places with bad sound," Ward said. "But at Newport they actually care about the music. It does have a really important history to it, but in the here and now, it's just a really great festival."

Star power

Newport also has a tradition of providing the big break that young musicians and new bands are looking for. A then-unknown 18-year-old Joan Baez performed at the inaugural festival. A year later she had a record contract.

Jays hope father knows best

Club turns to Rasmus' dad for input New centre-fielder was coached by him in high school

When the Toronto Blue Jays rolled out the welcome mat for new outfielder Colby Rasmus on Thursday, they extended it to his father, too.

Acquired the previous day in a three-team trade with the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago White Sox, Rasmus batted second and started in centre field against Baltimore.

Blue Jays manager John Farrell said the team intends to speak with Rasmus' father, Tony, about Colby's hitting and how best to coach him. Rasmus and the Cardinals apparently clashed over his decision to be coached by his father, rather than work with hitting coaches Mark McGwire and Mike Aldrete.

"It's to gain information from Colby's dad, to understand some of the drill work, the terminology, some of the key points that have been looked at within his swing," Farrell said. "What are some of the things they use to maintain a very productive left-handed swing? That's not to say we're going to give him a uniform and have him sit in the dugout, but I just think it's a smart thing to do.

"You're not looking to build walls, you're always looking to build bridges, to make sure you get the most out of any given player," he added.

"It's nice to go to the park and try to have a little fun versus showing up for a funeral procession every day."
COLBY RASMUS' FATHER TONY COMMENTING ON HIS SON'S TRADE ON RADIO STATION FAN 590.

Rasmus, who was hitting .246 with 11 homers and 40 RBIs at the time of the deal, played down the importance of his family coaching connection.

"I don't think that needs to be a big issue, really," Rasmus said. "My dad coached me all the way growing up and he has a big interest in my baseball, wants me to play well and knows my swing pretty well ... I'm just trying to play good, play hard, nothing further than that.

St. Louis manager Tony La Russa acknowledged having a "shaky" relationship with Rasmus, a first-round pick of the Cardinals out of high school in 2005 who was the jewel of the farm system before arriving in the majors in 2009.

"Can he be a great player? Absolutely, if he learns and improves," La Russa said, though after the trade he referred to Rasmus as a "bench player."

Humble start

Colby Rasmus went 0-for-5 with two strikeouts in his first game as a Blue Jay on Thursday night.

- The Jays still managed a win as Edwin Encarnacion and Eric Thames hit back-to-back homers and J.P. Arencibia hit a two-run double in a four-run third inning as Toronto beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-5.
- Encarnacion also had a single, a double and a walk for the Blue Jays (53-52), who took the deciding game of the three-game series.
- J.J. Hardy hit two home runs for the Orioles to give him 18 on the season and four in the series.
- Carlos Villanueva (6-2) allowed six hits, including two home runs, and four runs in five innings to get the win. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reality hits home in CFL with Harris' death

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

The sudden death on Tuesday of Richard Harris, 63-year-old Winnipeg Blue Bombers defensive line coach, casts a light on the less-than-idyllic lifestyle of CFL coaches.

Harris suffered a heart attack inside the Blue Bombers' complex where coaches can toil 12 to 14 hours a day, watching film or meeting with players, often starting at 6 a.m.

While we can't speculate on Harris's situation, sleep, diet and exercise can all be compromised by the demands of a schedule that doesn't allow for many days off or free time for workouts or relaxation.

Maybe it's time for the coaches to form a union, much like the players have, with a collective bargaining agreement that limits their workload and hours at the team's facility.

Stamped with arrogance:

It's not hard to figure out why the Calgary Stampeders are the most hated team in the CFL. Usually a squad has to put together multiple championship seasons before fans get sick of their dominance and start hoping the team collapses. In the case of the Stamps, the team merely thinks it's great, despite just one title during the current regime. That's reason enough for most CFL fans to cheer for them to fail.

Stamps quarterback Henry Burris reached for Twitter after last week's loss to reassure everyone that even though his offence sucks, they'll be "great" before the year is through.

"We will be a great team this year! Mark my word!" Burris tweeted the morning after the Stamps fell 24-19 to the Eskimos, during which Stamps fans booed the team off the field.

Added receiver Ken-Yon Rambo: "That just shows how much respect they have for the team."

Rambo should realize it's not just his own fans that disrespect the current crop of Stamps, owners of a very average 2-2 record. It's a league-wide phenomenon, spurred on by the team's brash and arrogant antics.

Esks tuning out naysayers:

Edmonton's "scorched earth" approach to its roster in the off-season was supposed to trigger a rough year for the Eskimos, but it seems the team didn't get that memo.

The Esks last season didn't win their fourth game until October but remarkably are the only undefeated team so far with a perfect 4-0 mark. Most of the credit goes to new head coach Kavis Reed, a former Eskimos player who has a grasp of the winning culture the franchise embodies and has conveyed that message to his players on a vastly rebuilt roster. It also doesn't hurt that veteran QB Ricky Ray has finally found a balanced attack with new running back Jerome Messam, a B.C. Lions castoff.

All in or fold? Stakes high as

Weekend should reveal which teams are serious about making a run at the 2011 World Series

The Major League Baseball trade deadline is fast approaching, and plenty of big names have already moved.

Carlos Beltran is headed to San Francisco, bolstering the reigning world champions for another run at the title and Colby Rasmus is out of Tony La Russa's dog house in St. Louis and moving to Toronto.

With the deadline looming Sunday, there are still a lot of big decisions to be made and big stars who could be getting changes of scenery.

The New York Yankees are in second place in the AL East, three games behind Boston, which almost assuredly means they will be active. The Yankees could be in the market for a quality starter with Phil Hughes struggling and a left-handed reliever.

"If we make moves, we feel that it's to better the club," Yankees manager Joe Girardi said. "Will we tweak it? I don't know. Past history has shown the Yankees have done everything they can to tweak the club to make it better."

Other teams in baseball's upper echelon like the Red Sox and Phillies will likely be active in the trade market as well.

Several other teams are in limbo. The Minnesota Twins are six games behind the Detroit Tigers in the AL Central. They have a history of late-season surges, but must make a decision soon if they are going to be buyers or sellers.

The Cleveland Indians are in a similar boat. The Indians trail the Tigers by just two games. They traded for outfield help Thursday. With outfielders Grady Sizemore and Shin-Soo Choo on the disabled the Indians added Cubs outfielder Kosuke Fukudome for a pair of minor league players.

And what about the Cincinnati Reds? They're five games behind the Cardinals in the NL Central — and St. Louis just picked up right-hander Edwin Jackson, too — but some help in the rotation or the outfield could put them right back in the picture.

Market watch

Four impact players rumoured to be available going into Sunday's non-waiver deadline.

Ubaldo Jimenez
RHP, COLORADO
27-year-old is having an off year, but his strikeout power is overpowering. Good fits? Yankees, Reds.

Heath Bell
RHP, SAN DIEGO
All-star is maybe the most proven closer available. Good fits? Rangers, Angels, Cardinals.

Hunter Pence
RF, HOUSTON
Hitting .307 with 11 HRs, 62 RBIs and 24 2Bs, for the lowly Astros. Good fits? Braves, Phillies.

B.J. Upton
CF, TAMPA BAY
2002's second overall pick has 15 HRs and 53 RBIs, with AVG of .227. Good fits? Nationals, Tigers.

▶ The Texas Rangers saw what a big deal can do last year when they got ace starter Cliff Lee, second left, from Seattle and rode him to the World Series.

More big names find new NFL homes

There goes Albert Haynesworth, heading from Mike Shanahan's Redskins to Bill Belichick's Patriots. Reggie Bush? The Saints sent him to the Dolphins. And the Kevin Kolb saga is ending the way pretty much everyone expected, with a trade from the Eagles to the Cardinals.

NFL clubs made a move a minute Thursday — and that trio of big-name deals was only the beginning.

Day 3 of the compressed, post-lockout off-season also included more contract agreements and plenty of cuts, which teams were finally allowed to start announcing at 4:01 p.m. ET. Among the players getting released were Vince Young by the Titans, Nate Clements by the 49ers and Jake Delhomme by the Browns.

In the first dramatic example of how the new labour deal's rookie salary system will affect elite players, No. 2 overall draft pick Von Miller got about $21 million US over four years from the Denver Broncos. The No. 2 pick in 2010, Detroit Lions defensive lineman Ndamukong Suh, signed a five-year deal worth $40 million guaranteed and as much as $68 million overall.

In the Kolb deal, Philadelphia received cornerback Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie and a 2012 second-round draft pick from Arizona, which was in need of a starting quarterback. Kolb had lost the Eagles' No. 1 QB job to Michael Vick and another chance to start.

Kolb, who turns 27 next month, reportedly will get a $63-million, five-year contract with the Cardinals.

All Washington got for Haynesworth, meanwhile, was a 2013 fifth-round pick. By shipping the defensive tackle to New England, the Redskins rid themselves of a two-year distraction and fiasco of a free-agent signing — Haynesworth was guaranteed a then-record $41 million in the seven-year, $100 million contract he signed in 2009.

Haynesworth played in only 20 games for Washington, making 6 ½ sacks, and was in constant legal trouble away from the field.

Texas Rangers
New ownership has been super aggressive. Reportedly went hard after Beltran and are set on getting a closer to help Neftali Feliz — his five blown saves are third-most in AL.

Minnesota Twins
The Twins need major help in bullpen and rotation if they decide to buy. If they sell OFs Jason Kubel, Delmon Young, Michael Cuddyer and DH Jim Thome could all be available.

Philadelphia Phillies
Their aces could use some run support. Phillies have the best record in the majors, but are 18th in team batting average and 13th in runs scored. They covet Astros OF Hunter Pence and White Sox OF Carlos Quentin.

Seattle Mariners
GMs around the MLB are licking their chops and hoping they finally get word that LHP Felix Hernandez is on the market. The M's steadfastly maintain they're holding on to King Felix and all-star closer Brandon League.

‘He was one of the pioneers’

Japanese pitcher Hideki Irabu who preceded Ichiro Suzuki and Hideki Matsui in coming to North America is found dead in his home ◗ Los Angeles County coroner’s office is investigating his death as a suicide

Hideki Irabu joined the New York Yankees 14 years ago in a swell of international excitement. The quirky, flamethrowing Japanese right-hander seemed destined to become a pioneering star for American baseball’s marquee franchise.

Irabu never reached those enormous expectations, and his career spiralled. On Wednesday, the 42-year-old was found dead, an apparent suicide in a home in Rancho Palos Verdes, a wealthy Los Angeles suburb.

“He was a world-class pitcher,” said former major league manager Bobby Valentine, who managed Irabu in Japan in 1995. “When Nolan Ryan saw him, he said he had never seen anything like it. There were just some days when he was as good a pitcher as I had ever seen. A fabulous arm.”

Los Angeles County coroner’s official Ed Winter said his office is investigating Irabu’s death as a suicide, revealing no additional circumstances. An autopsy will be performed Friday or Saturday.

Irabu was billed as the Japanese version of Ryan when he arrived in the United States in 1997, a hard-throwing starter with a 98-mph fastball who excelled as a strikeout specialist — an almost unfair addition to the defending World Series champions.

▶ Hideki Irabu speaks to the media during a press conference at Yankee Stadium in 1997.

After an impressive debut with the Yankees that summer, he was a disappointment to the Yankees and himself during three seasons in the Bronx. Instead, he was forever tagged with a label from late Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who called him a “fat ... toad” after Irabu failed to cover first base during an exhibition game.

Irabu finished 34-35 with a 5.15 earned-run average in his tenure with the Yankees, two years in Montreal and a final season in the Texas bullpen in 2002. He was a member of two Yankees teams that won the World Series, but his only post-season action was a single relief appearance in the 1999 AL championship series when Boston tagged him for 13 hits.

Irabu pitched in an American independent league and signed with a Japanese team in recent years while living with his family in Southern California. Neighbours believe Irabu had grown despondent recently because of a split with his wife.

Valentine said he got the news about Irabu on Thursday when it came across on his mobile phone.

“I got a little sick to my stomach, actually,” he said.

Irabu was one of several pitchers from Japan who hoped to duplicate Hideo Nomo’s trailblazing achievements in the major leagues. Irabu also was a curiosity — he taped magnets all over his body when he pitched, hoping they would bring wellness.

“I think that he was one of his own worst enemies.”
BOBBY VALENTINE

Although Irabu largely struggled in the majors, he left a lasting legacy. Several big stars, from Ichiro Suzuki to Hideki Matsui, followed Nomo and Irabu from Japan to the United States.

“He was one of the pioneers,” Valentine said. “There was a lot riding on his shoulders.”

Irabu starred in Japan for nearly a decade before the San Diego Padres purchased his contract from the Chiba Lotte Marines. But Irabu declined to join the Padres, insisting he would only play for the Yankees.

The Yankees put together a package and traded for Irabu a few months later and signed him to a four-year, $12.8 million US contract.

“We are deeply saddened to learn of the passing of Hideki Irabu,” the Yankees said in a statement. “Every player that wears the Pinstripes is forever a part of the Yankees family, and his death is felt throughout our organization.”

Caroline, Love you honey! Can't wait to see you! CHRIS

My MoonSaur Babe Honey..agree, let's go to bed hand in hand NOW. Coz you need sleep..lots of it. It has been a while we both have not slept coz of me missing YOU n you missing me. Now we have found each other. haha..LOL..:) So relax n sleep well:):) hug. SMILEOSAUR

Green Eyes, When your intense green eyes looks at me, I know why I fell in love with you. Too bad that now you have a girlfriend and I am not one to ruin other people's relationships. You made your choice when you picked her over me and now I have made mine by avoiding you and saving myself further heartbreak. So get the message and don't talk to me unless it is work related! BROWN EYES

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Make a point of looking for the good things in life today, rather than the bad things. You may be surprised.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Mercury at odds with Neptune warns it might be wise to think again about a project you are planning.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You may be tempted to tell someone what you really think of him or her. Hold your tongue – for now.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Your popularity seems to be soaring, but don't let it go to your head.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 You may want to start something new but there is no need to rush.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Think before you speak today and steer clear of controversial issues.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Don't worry if you can't seem to get into the swing of things socially today because you will more than make up for it over the weekend.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 If someone makes a suggestion that goes against your principles, you must turn it down flat.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Someone in a position of authority will put you to the test. Show him or her you're up for the challenge.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Don't like the public eye? So what? It's a crime to waste your talents.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Others can test limits if they want. You must avoid going to extremes. Steer a middle course. It's safe.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Sometimes the best way to deal with annoying people is simply to ignore them. SALLY BROMPTON
